

MEANINGFUL MILE

RING ROAD LOOP

1 Jack Langson Library

Scenes from 1980's horror film "Poltergeist" were filmed in Langson Library. The UC library system is the second largest in the world.

2 Social Science Tower

The opening scene for the 1972 film "Conquest of the Planet of the Apes" was filmed on the steps of the Social Science Tower.

3 Engineering Tower

Built in the early 1970's it is the tallest structure at UCI with 9 floors. The discolored panels on the side of the building starting on the 5th floor and up were used to move heavy machinery and equipment into the top floors with the help of a crane on the roof during the early 1970's.

4 Physical Science Plaza

Physical Science is the home of two of our very own Nobel Laureates: Fredrick Reines and F. Sherwood Rowland. Two of our structures are named after them: Reines Hall and Rowland Hall. Reines discovered the neutrino, an elementary subatomic particle, which is one of the smallest of the "building blocks" of nature. Rowland discovered the ozone layer had been depleted by chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's).

5 Humanities Plaza

The school has the highest number of nationally ranked programs on campus. Faculty includes Pulitzer Prize and National Book Award recipients. Humanities Gateway earned LEED platinum rating from US Green Building Council in 2011 for ultra-low energy use, high efficiency elevators, and California "cool roof" to minimize heat.
